

BUCK  BROS.

TRADE MARK

MILLBURY, MASS.

1853 - 1934

For eighty-one years we have maintained the highest standard of materials and quality in making tools. Tempted many times to manufacture down to a price, our judgment of making only the best has been justified by the desire of the real artisan for tools which last.

Cutting Tools that LAST!

Did you ever work side by side with a man and have to stop twice to his once for sharpening?

Buck Brothers' tools hold their sharpness. They are made up to a standard and not down to a price.

When you go into a store and look over a tool, the only thing you can really tell about it is its hang and balance. The only way to test it is to put it to work. Use it hard day after day. If, after a long time, you still like it and it is a pleasure to use it, you have a good tool.

Thousands of users of Buck Brothers' tools consider them almost like members of their family and wouldn't sell them at any price if they could not be replaced.

Buck Brothers' tools are not expensive. While they cost a little more in the beginning, they are cheapest in the long run.
